Closing Out Sale.

I am now Selling Out all my Well Located

Butler & Iron Co., Mo., Properties

AT GREATLY SACRIFICED PRICES AND ON EASY TERMS.

My properties in Butler County consist of many vacant and some nicely improved lots in Poplar Bluff and Hartsell, one Two-Story 22-Room Hotel, one Saloon Building, and one Store Building, located between Frisco and St. L. I. M. & S. stations in the town of Hartsell; also Wild Lands and numerous Farms, in tracts of 40 acres and up. My farm lands, both up-lands and bottoms, have a fertile soil well adapted to the growth of clover and other grasses, also wheat, oats, corn and potatoes, as well as all other farm products raised in South east Missouri. They are all located within one-half to six miles of town and two trunk lines of railroad, the St. L. I. M. & S. R. Y. and the Frisco system, some of them adjoining the right of way of each railroad. They are situated in good healthy settlements, within easy reach of school houses and churches, and the best of water being accessible at minimum cost. I have lived in Butler county over a quarter of a century enjoying good health and prosperity, and during these years I have had chances to select the garden spots of the county. I am also offering for sale several improved and a number of vacant lots and a Three-Story 25-Room Hotel in the beautiful Arcadia Valley, all located in Arcadia, Iron County, Mo. The only hotel in the town, and is just a few steps from the railroad station and has a good patronage. My motive for selling is my desire to retire from business, and will not therefore hesitate to give any one wishing to invest a good bargain on any of the above properties.

CHURCH AND SCHOOL.

BY I. B. MANLY.

The best way to keep your boy going to church is to keep going with him.

The church that uses its children and young people may expect to have trained workers for the future.

The church that neglects strangers and children, need not be surprised when everybody neglects to attend that house of worship.

Take all the members of the church and get the average of these homes as to morals, piety and the attendance at worship, and you will see what the church is.

If you want to be happy in your church work, look on the sunny side. "Let's find the sunny side of men, or be believers in it; A light there is in every soul, That takes the pains to find it."

The people who ignore their denominational church schools and are satisfied with their children being in any school, may remember two things: one is, they neglect the institution where the best training can be had, and the other is, they slight and hinder the schools that they promised to support.

One great need among church people is sacred enthusiasm. It has truly been said: Indifference never leads armies that conquer, never molds statues that live, nor breathes sublime music, nor harnesses the forces of nature, nor rears impressive architecture, nor moves the soul with poetry, nor the world with heroic philanthropies.

"Tell me all the good you can about the people that you know. Tell me only the good about them. Tell me the things which will make me think well of people and of life. Tell me the things which will make my sun shine, my heart glad, and my soul to rejoice. Tell me the things which will straighten up my thinking and give me the right principles of work and of play and of thought."

In your church work do not be afraid of failure. "Do something. Go for the enemy. Save somebody. Don't be scared by difficulties. Don't be afraid of a row. You are made for a fight—called to it, saved on purpose. But you must risk something to gain something. All my reading, and observation, and experience go to show that the saying, 'Nothing venture, nothing win,' is true, sacredly true. Nothing more so. It is as true as truth itself."

If you want some money always on hand for the church or charitable work: "Be careful to put the Lord's money aside. We must not trust in our memories, or generalities. We must be minute, and specific, and careful, some having a bag, others a box, into which the Lord's portion is carefully put; some having a separate banking account; and all having some kind of ledger account, where we may put down what we receive and spend for Christ, that there may be no embezzlement, however inadvertent, of that which is not ours."

Gallops for Aid.

When your stomach is all upset, your liver in bad shape, your bowels out of whack, your head like to split, and every nerve in your body on edge, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin gallops for aid and you get it. It clears out your poisoned system, brings fresh, clean blood supply to all your digestive organs, and restores to you that comfortable feeling of perfect health. Sold by Arcadia Valley Drug Co. at 50c and $1.00. Money back if it fails.

Coffee Toppers.

We are far in the lead as a nation of coffee drinkers. About a billion pounds of the berry were consumed in the United States last year. We are as good a market for it as all the other countries of the globe combined. Our per capita consumption last year was 13.64 pounds.

Some unthinking persons have accepted these portentous figures as evidence that we are getting further and further away from alcoholic drinks as a beverage. But this is an error. More coffee drinking is no indication of less alcoholic drinking. Coffee does not displace alcohol any more than it displaces tobacco.

The truth is that the three increase together. The more coffee-drinking, the more tobacco-using, and the more of both, the more drinking of alcohol. Statistics have no doubt of this. Figures available for 1902, the latest calendar year showing coffee consumed in the countries of the world, place Germany next to this country. The Kaiser's beer loving subjects used almost 400,000,000 pounds; but that was, however, less than half the quantity that the coffee-drinkers of the United States consumed.

In 1830 the consumption of coffee in the United States was less than three pounds per capita. It has grown steadily year by year until it is four times that. We take and use half the coffee exported by the coffee growing countries.

Figures furnished by the bureau of statistics at Washington show that our coffee bill last year was $81,000,000. That is a rather magnificent amount of money to send abroad for a single article of food, which is not food at all, and which, according to most medical authorities, we could do better without. —Kansas City World.

Increasing Corn Yields.

Recent investigations at the Missouri Experiment Station indicate that the average corn yields in Missouri may be increased ten bushels per acre by inexpensive methods. The information on how to accomplish these results is contained in circular of information No. 19, M. F. Miller, a copy of which can be had by addressing the Director of the Experiment Station, Columbia, Mo.

The most common cause of low corn yields is a poor stand of corn. A poor stand of corn is usually the result of planting seed that will not grow or distributing the corn unevenly in the hills. The Experiment station has carefully investigated seed corn taken during February, 1905, from the cribs of Missouri corn growers and the result shows that only 63 per cent of such corn will grow. To get a good stand at least 95 per cent should grow vigorously.

The above indicates that seed corn can not be safely selected from the crib, but should be carefully selected from the field as follows: Select from desirable stalks only those ears which show desirable characteristics. Place the ears at once in small piles or in shallow layers in some dry room or crib where they will become thoroughly dry before hard freezing weather.

Corn must not be allowed to freeze before it is thoroughly dry. Corn stored in large heaps or in air tight boxes before being thoroughly dried tends to heat and injure the vitality. Dry corn quickly and keep it dry that the vitality may be preserved.

Plant good varieties of corn. On the experiment station fields some ears of the Boone county white variety yielded at the rate of forty-five bushels per acre; other ears on the same soil treated in the same way yielded ninety bushels per acre. Pure bred seed corn is much more productive than ordinary sorts.

Whatever the variety of corn a farmer may grow he will always profit by a very careful selection of seed. He should practice a system of corn breeding; that is, he should always grow his seed corn in a part of the field or in a plot by itself. This plot should be planted with the most perfect ears obtainable and seed corn for the next year always selected from this area. He will, in this way, improve his corn, both in yield and quality, and he will find it pays handsomely for the time and trouble necessary.

This valuable bulletin describing the best methods of increasing corn yields in Missouri may be had free by addressing the Director of the Experiment Station, Columbia, Missouri.

Rev. R. W. Mason.

Rev. R. W. Mason, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Salida, died at 2:45 o'clock Tuesday, February 21st, of spinal meningitis, after an illness of ten days. While the end was not unexpected, nevertheless, his demise has cast a gloom over the entire city. For Mr. Mason was one that was loved by all who came in contact with him. It can be truly said of the deceased that he was one who "loved his fellow man." This has been demonstrated so often and in so many ways that any person in the city who was fortunate enough to know him could recite some act of charity or some deed of kindness prompted by the generosity of a loving heart. Robert W. Mason was born in Glasgow, Scotland,

March 3, 1855, and hence would have been 49 years old in a few days. He came to this country when very young, and his parents made their home in Cincinnati, Ohio. He graduated from Princeton University in 1887, and from the theological seminary of the same institution in 1890, and was ordained to the gospel ministry the same year by the Presbytery at St. Louis. During his junior year at college he contested and won the oratorical medal. After completing his course in college he accepted a call to a pulpit in De Soto, Missouri, and served that church until he was called to Salida in October, 1901. He was married in August, 1901, at Bismarck, Missouri, the home of his bride, who with a son, two years old, the pride of the father's life, survive him. Deceased has a brother in California, who arrived in Salida Wednesday morning, a married sister in Washington, mother, sister and brother in Cincinnati, Ohio, and a brother in Chicago. Funeral services were held at the Presbyterian church at 8 o'clock Thursday morning, conducted by Rev. J. B. McCuish, of Leadville, who was a classmate of the deceased, and a fast friend of the family. The church was crowded to its fullest capacity. Rev. Cook of the Christian church made the opening prayer, followed by scripture reading by Rev. Shaw of the Baptist church. Rev. Webb of the Methodist church also offered prayer and Dr. McCuish made a brief address, emphasizing the fact that the desire of Mr. Mason all through his ministry was to work for the Master that souls might be saved. Mrs. E. S. Plimpton, Sr., spoke a few words in eulogy of the deceased on behalf of the W. C. T. U., of which organization he was an honorary member. A quartette choir had charge of the music, which was appropriate. The closing hymn was a portion of a favorite hymn of Mr. Mason, the second verse of which, last Thursday night, upon his bed of suffering, he sang. The words are as follows:

There'll be no more sorrow when Jesus comes,
There'll be no more sorrow when Jesus comes;
But glorious morning when Jesus comes
To gather his loved ones home.

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Kennedy of the Advent church, and the vast audience followed the remains to the depot, where the east-bound train was taken. The remains were shipped to Cincinnati, and by request of the deceased, will be interred beside his father, who died about seventeen years ago. Mrs. Mason will accompany the remains to Cincinnati, and from there will go to her former home in Bismarck, Missouri, where she will probably remain. —Salida (Col.) Record.

Sells More of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy than of All Others Put Together.

The following letter from a locality where Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is well known shows by the unprecedented demand for it that the medicine sells on its own merit. Mr. Thos. George, a merchant at St. Elgin, Ontario, says: "I have had the local agency for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy ever since it was introduced into Canada, and I sell as much of it as I do of all other lines I have on my shelves put together. Of the many dozens sold under guarantee, I have not had one returned. I can personally recommend this medicine, as I have used it myself and given it to my children and always with the best results." Bellevue Items.

As Polly and Eva have buried the hatchet I will venture to send a few items to let you know that they have not really buried each other, for I saw Eva not long ago wearing a big sun bonnet. She said that it was to keep freckles, but it was set on in a way to be very becoming to light hair and black eyes. I saw Polly, too, but he is one of those creatures that never wear bonnets.

Miss Verna Smith was surprised by a party of young friends last Friday evening, to celebrate her sixteenth birthday. Miss Verna had invited her friends for Saturday night, but in the meantime, they had been planning some for themselves, and her surprise was great when they arrived at her home Friday night. Nevertheless, we were heartily welcomed, and as every one had come for a good time various kinds of games were indulged in. All went quietly and pleasantly until a certain guest, through fear of chewing "rabbit fashion," tried to force his enormous form through a window, regardless of either curtains or glass. The reader can picture the results of such an action, without mentioning torn curtains or broken glass. We heard that one of the Graniteville guests was so bewitchingly fascinated with a certain face as to try to carve a likeness of the same on a stone next day. Boys, we know their faces can never be forgotten, but don't try such an expensive experiment again. We appreciate the compliment, if you did ruin the stone. The following were present: Misses Leota Hawkins, Alma Love, Pelora Edmonds, Ethel Hawkins, Gracie McCall, Gertie Fitzpatrick,
